

Germany Modifies U-Boat War; Demands That U. S. Bring Britain to Terms

to terms, the Kaiser will reopen the whole submarine question. This is the "string" in the note.

The German reply sharply accuses the United States of discrimination in favor of the allies and against Germany.

The note has not yet been given out at the State Department, but it was published in the Berlin newspapers today and was sent by wireless from that source to the American newspapers.

Gravely apprehensive, Washington awaited President Wilson's interpretation of the German reply. Officialdom was widely divided as to the effect of the note. The text, it was admitted, was open to two interpretations—either that it did or did not meet the views of the President.

Those who argued that it did pointed out that the only part of the rejoinder which showed definite action set forth that Germany has changed the orders given her submarine commanders so that now they specifically are instructed to obey the requirements of international law in attacking merchantmen and are also to save lives except when vessels resist or try to escape.

Those taking an opposite view and they include many of the administration leaders, insisted that the concession is so larded about by conditions that it does not meet the views of the United States and that President Wilson has no alternative under his own note of April 18 but to recall Ambassador Gerard and hand Ambassador von Bernstorff his passports.

The President and his Cabinet had before them today the press dispatches containing the note. But the pleasant fiction of not consulting any text but that officially communicated by Ambassador Gerard as the official one was resorted to in order to evade any expression of any sort that could be construed as indicating the attitude to be taken by the administration.

The German text is on the way by cable in code, and it cannot get into President Wilson's hands, State Department officials say, until before tomorrow.

It was emphatically asserted at both

FEATURES IN GERMAN REPLY

Here are the features of the German reply defining Germany's attitude on the question of submarine warfare.

The German Admiralty has issued a new order to submarine commanders (a copy of which is included in the note) by which no more merchant ships shall be sunk without being first visited and searched and that all persons on board the merchant ships shall be given a chance to escape.

Germany declares that unless the United States compels England to cease "violating the rules of international law" a new situation will arise in which the German government must reserve for itself complete liberty of decision.

Germany declares that:

The United States has discriminated against her in favor of the allies.

The German people have become aroused by the attitude of the United States.

The German government is determined not to give up its most effective weapon (the submarine) although a restriction of its use will be allowed.

The United States is expected to co-operate with Germany in "restoring the freedom of the seas."

The German government wishes to prevent a break with the United States.

The German government wants to confine fighting to belligerent nations and not extend the bloodshed to countries now at peace.

The United States will be held responsible if the German armies are defeated through the "starvation policy" laid down by England in her blockade.

Germany intends to continue her submarine warfare and frequent references are made in the note to "the German people" as apart from the German government.

The note intimates that responsibility for a break would rest with the United States and the note plainly indicates that a further exchange of representations is desired before certain elements of the submarine controversy are cleared up.

The White House and the State Department that there will be no immediate haste in reaching the decision on whether the note is satisfactory or not.

The President and Secretary Lansing will digest the entire note before reaching any conclusion, and even the President's closest advisers declined to hazard a guess as to what his attitude is likely to be.

So far as the general tone of the reply was concerned, officials conceded its seeming unfriendliness, but it was pointed out that this was to be expected owing to the fact that the German government was compelled to take into consideration the effect any concession whatever to the United States would have upon the German people, who consider the submarine the nation's chief weapon for offensive operations on the sea.

The accusations that this government has favored the allies and discriminated against Germany had been expected by officials here and are discounted by the realization that a generous policy of this undoubtedly is designated for home consumption.

SEVERAL ORDERS CHANGED.

The real crux of the situation was contained in the declaration by the German government that its orders to its submarine commanders now have been changed.

Taken by themselves, the new orders would absolutely prevent a break because they fully meet what the United States would be necessary to satisfy the government.

But the fact that Germany has agreed to comply with the demands of the United States now will expect the United States to demand and insist that the British government shall forthwith observe the international laws universally recognized before the war and with the threat that if the United States shall fail to attain the object it desires the German government would be facing a new situation in which it must reserve for itself complete liberty of action has admittedly complicated the situation.

WILSON WILL NOT ACCEPT.

The men who best know President Wilson's mind insisted today that he will not accept any such limited acceptance of his original demand. They say that he has exerted in all of his advisers that the United States will not be any party to harping to compel belligerents to observe the recognized rules of civilized warfare.

And if he considers the orders to the submarine commanders conditional upon the demand for action against Great Britain, these officials declare that he will have no hesitation in shaping his future course of action along the lines he has already mapped out in the warfare to Germany.

Many of the Senate and House leaders took the view that the German reply was such a sweeping victory for the United States that the President should accept it, even though it did not go so far as he desired.

But they admitted that they would not feel that they would given to the United States in respect to such trade, it was declared by the Foreign Office.

The United States is charged with responsibility for the dangers confronting citizens of that country travelling upon ships flying the flag of a belligerent nation.

If the United States had accepted the proposal of Germany, the note says, the greater part of these accidents to citizens of the United States would have been avoided.

DEMONSTRATION.

The government of Germany will stand by its offer to come to an agreement along these lines," says the Foreign Office.

It is alleged that the United States has made a series of statements to Germany which have for their gist the charge that the German Admiralty has been conducting its underwater warfare ruthlessly and without regard for the laws of war and that it has been committing atrocities.

It is also charged that representations have been made to the German government by the United States which have been completely disregarded.

The note opens with mention of the Bismarck case and the first section of it is less conciliatory than had been expected. In fact, there was a definite tone about it.

LUCIANO CREDITORS ELECT TRUSTEE

Isaac Harris was today elected trustee at the first meeting of the creditors of Frank Luciano, North End banker, under indictment for the murder of Eugene Convin, a business associate. About 100 creditors who had been deposited in Luciano's bank, were present at the meeting, held in the Bankruptcy Court. Harris filed claims for the majority of the deposits, and, representing three creditors, also filed an involuntary petition in bankruptcy against Luciano and John Luciano, doing business as Luciano & Company.

Luciano & Company, a corporation, is alleged to have transferred part of its assets to John C. Crowley, an attorney, for some unknown creditor.

Germany Defends Submarine Warfare

Berlin, May 3.—Germany's reply to the note of the United States, which was made public today, defends Germany's submarine warfare.

Germany does not regard the reply as final. In the response the opportunity is asked to make further representations to the United States, particularly in regard to the Bismarck. The note declares that the German government has restricted her submarine activities to her own disadvantage and to the advantage of the allies, adding:

"No such consideration has ever been shown neutrals by Great Britain and her allies."

The contention of the Imperial government is that the submarine warfare of this nation has always been conducted with regard to the rules of war.

ENEMY TRADE EXCEPTED.

The exception has been in the case of enemy trade or carried on in the "war zone" waters around the British Isles, the note states.

However, no assurances were given.

SAYS FARE PROTEST IS AT STAKE IN THE PLAN TO ABOLISH BOARD

The proposal to abolish the Public Service Commission during the trial of the Bay State Street Railway dissent fare case was criticized as unwise and inopportune today by Ralph S. Bauer of Lynn, who is foremost in the ranks of the private citizens opposing the big fare grab.

Mr. Bauer, speaking in behalf of the Associated Board of Trade of Essex County, of which he is the former President, voiced his disapproval of the scheme in an open letter sent by him to Representative Joseph H. Warner of Taunton, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee of the Legislature.

He set forth the fact that the Bay State Street Railway has expended $100,000 in the preparation of its case and has recently completed the submission of its evidence to the Commission. The expenses of the dissent fare case have also gone to a considerable expense in the way and will shortly begin the presentation of its case to the Commission.

TIME IS TOO SHORT.

"The whole case," he says, "is most important and far-reaching problem ever put before any Commission in the State, involving as it does, London's daily demand of a street railway that claims to have incurred nearly $10,000,000 in its expenses."

As the time for a verdict on the dissent fare case will expire on September 1, Mr. Bauer says that the proposed new Commission would not have sufficient time to fairly consider the evidence and that both the Bay State and its opponents would be put to a needless expense in trying the case over again.

Governor McCall has intimated that, with the passage of the bill now before the Legislature, the present Public Service Commission would be allowed to remain in existence until after December 1. But on this point, Mr. Bauer says:

"No human tribunal can render fair judgment when their state of mind is subjecting to their own death throes, and there is no fair reason for any Legislature to create conditions of this nature, when a case is at hand that has so vital a bearing on the daily life of eighty communities in this State."

Mr. Bauer has devoted the time, untiringly, and has spent $3,000 out of his own pocket to conduct the dissent fare case. It was he who engaged the street railway expert to investigate the Bay State from stem to stern and to prepare the evidence that will soon be laid down by the Bay State case.

Mr. Bauer's letter to Mr. Warner is as follows:

Joseph H. Warner, Chairman,
House Ways and Means Committee.

My Dear Sir:
There is before your committee a proposition to abolish the present Public Service Commission and we wish to make the following statement through you on this matter. The present Public Service Commission is now properly and legally hearing parties at issue on the proposition of the Bay State Street Railway to increase its fares to six cents, shorten several of its present routes and give itself many of the free transfer privileges and do away with transfers. The half fare concession is a ticket.

The railway company has spent $100,000 in preparing its case and has filed its part of the direct evidence before this Commission. The opposition to its proposal has for months been preparing its side of the controversy at a very considerable expense, and is now before this Commission in an effort to protect the people of eighty cities and towns in Eastern Massachusetts against any increase in street car fares.

This whole case is the most important and far-reaching problem ever put before any Commission in this State.

It really affects the daily life of nearly London's people of this Commonwealth, and a claimed battle of nearly $10,000,000 is involved in almost our properties. Our present Public Service Commission has been legally made a tribunal to try this very important case before, and it is our belief that this is not an appropriate time when the case has been over half presented to abolish the tribunal which has so far heard the case, and substitute its place another tribunal who from the latest time limit, will be unable to fairly consider the case before it.

NEED HEAR ALL EVIDENCE.

A fair decision cannot be reached without at least properly hearing and weighing all of the evidence.

Neither of the parties should be subject to needless further expense by legislative action on a matter that is now half completed before the present Commission, and compelled to try the case over again before a new tribunal, with the legislative time limit for final decision preventing any kind of a proper presentation.

We assume no responsibility as to a decision by the present Commission that will be fair to all parties at interest, but we regard it impossible to do this over again before a new tribunal with the legislative time limit for final decision preventing any kind of a proper presentation.

WAYS BOARD TO ACT.

We deem it most important that all the interests involved be properly heard.

BRYAN AND FORD TO SPEAK AGAINST WAR

Boston, May 5.—William Jennings Bryan and Henry Ford have promised to speak at a mass meeting at the Auditorium next Sunday protesting against this country going to war over the submarine question with Germany.

THRICE MARRIED
SEEKS THIRD DIVORCE

Mrs. Bertha Greenburg M'Leod of Beverly, who has been thrice married and twice divorced, is now seeking a third separation, this time from her first husband.

She has just filed a bill in the Suffolk Superior Court, alleging unfaithfulness on the part of her husband, William M'Leod, whom she remarried after divorcing Miron J. Hirsche, her second matrimonial venture.

Mrs. M'Leod is said by her friends to exemplify the adage, "Marriage is like a lottery at war," for although she is described as an "average business woman," she has had little success in matrimony.

Mrs. M'Leod is twenty-nine, a graduate of the Boston University Law School, a member of the bar, and an able business woman. On July 15, 1903, when eighteen years old, she was married to William M'Leod, whose dancing ability had captivated the young woman.

In 1904 Mrs. M'Leod petitioned for a divorce on statutory grounds, and on January 17, 1907, the superior court handed down a decree nisi.

Later on M'Leod's claim that he and his wife had lived together after the libel was filed, the decree was set aside, but later another decree nisi was entered.

The young woman again took up her studies at the Boston University Law School, completing her course in 1909. In June of that year she was married to Hirsche, who was a member of her law class. In 1914 Mrs. M'Leod again appeared in the divorce court, declaring that one month from their marriage Hirsche had ceased to provide for her. On March 12, 1915, a decree nisi was handed out.

Mrs. M'Leod filed her bill of matrimonial restraints, then entered the office of a Boston lawyer, but the following year M'Leod again appeared, and on March 1, 1915, they were remarried. The woman now claims that on July 21, 1915, just four months after the ceremony took place, her husband forgot his matrimonial vows.

BOXER LOSES TO
MRS. 'ROB ROY'
IN AUTO SUIT

A Superior Court jury has returned a verdict of $495.51 in favor of Mrs. E. Newton, wife of R. H. Newton (Rob Roy), against Edward (Ted) Kins, the English welterweight boxer, for injuries received to her auto when the British boxer took a party on a ride in the machine. Lewis admitted that he used the auto in company with Allen Gosselin, his trainer, and two chorus girls.

The accident occurred in New York. Lewis claimed that Mrs. Newton's chauffeur was in charge of the auto at the time of the accident. This charge was denied by the plaintiff.

Lewis is well known in England. He has appeared in bouts at the Atlas A. A. with Mike Glover, Jack Britton, Jimmy Duffy and Joe Marston.

In his argument, Attorney John Vahney, who represented Mrs. Newton, said:

"Mrs. Newton was greatly surprised when she saw her $1200 auto after Lewis and his Broadway friends had gone on their ride. When Lewis and Gosselin got out with Broadway chorus girls they could not find a chair."

"When men of Lewis' type go to a lobster palace to spend money they are not for a good time. They had the machine go as fast as it could and lose it all, smashing."

President's Speech at 'Women's Plattsburg' Rapped by Reventlow as Insult to Germany

By AUGUSTUS F. BEACH.

Not Correspondent of the International News Service.
Berlin, May 5.—Under the caption "Diplomatic Avarice and Humanity," Count von Reventlow, in the Deutsche Tages-Zeitung, severely attacks President Wilson for the sentiment expressed in the speech he delivered at the opening of the Chevy Chase training camp for women, especially in view of the fact that it was delivered at a time when Ambassador Gerard was breaking bread with the Emperor at general headquarters.

The speech to which the count refers was that in which the President warned the world that America would be united in any war for humanity and that the honor of the United States could not be tampered with. Count von Reventlow says:

In times of political and diplomatic tension, in periods like these now obtaining in the relations between Germany and the United States government and their responsible heads, according to experience and all traditions, they are bound to observe the duties of diplomatic courtesy.

RICHARD WENZEL AFFAIR.
The United States, in assuming the role of a spontaneous, untutored, courteous youth, has decided to play the role of a young man who has just been introduced to a young woman. The United States, in assuming the role of a spontaneous, untutored, courteous youth, has decided to play the role of a young man who has just been introduced to a young woman. The United States, in assuming the role of a spontaneous, untutored, courteous youth, has decided to play the role of a young man who has just been introduced to a young woman.

have become accustomed to much along this line, but they have to state that an address like that delivered by President Wilson at a time when the American Ambassador was visiting general headquarters and breaking bread with the Emperor, is wholly without parallel.

QUOTES WILSON'S SPEECH.
According to a Washington dispatch of May 1, President Wilson, on the occasion of opening a training camp for army nurses, stated: "We shall never be drawn into war. Should that, however, become unavoidable, we shall raise ourselves from lethargy and demonstrate to every man who doubts the spirit of the new world that we continue to be the champions of peace."

It is plainly obvious that this was far from the spirit in which the President intended to speak, especially in view of the fact that he was making the speech at a time when the American Ambassador was visiting general headquarters and breaking bread with the Emperor.

CALLS IT INSULT.
Were one to employ harsh terms, it would be compelled to say that the insult to Germany is implied, when the President states that any war in which America would engage under the present circumstances would mean raising the voice of humanity.

The only conclusion permitted in that Germany is an enemy of mankind unless she meets the United States demand. This is a familiar American phrase and like all phrases it leaves us quite blind. The significance and importance of it all is that President Wilson should have said, or even implied, to express himself in this manner at this time.

PRIMARY RESULTS SHOW G. O. P. MAY WIN IN OHIO

By WILLIS J. ASBOTT.

Results of the primary election held in Ohio today, show little to encourage the Democrats.

The presidential campaign vote in Ohio showed little to encourage the Democrats. The vote was a heavy one for the Republicans.

Some part of the little vote cast in favor of the Democrats, in fact, was added to the Republican total, without this allowance the Republicans would have won by a large margin.

Virtually the same condition of political sentiment was shown by the vote for governor at large.

To this, Senator Harding led the Republican list with 111,998 votes to 67,411 for the Democrats.

Clark Is Choice as Convention Leader

By International News Service.

Washington, May 5.—Martin H. Johnson, former governor of New York, for temporary chairman, and Champ Clark, speaker of the House of Representatives, for permanent chairman.

This is the tentative plan of President Wilson's political managers for the Democratic national convention at St. Louis, if the approval of the President.

The President's political managers believe that they are counting on Johnson's (Clark's) acceptance of the permanent chairmanship. As temporary chairman, former Governor Johnson would make the "keynote" speech of the convention.

The President's supporters express confidence that the administration group will control the convention, although certain disquieting reports regarding William Jennings Bryan's attitude have caused some uneasiness.

We Save $30,000 a Year

On a single item of expense that you probably never thought of

Besides carrying one of the largest clothing stocks in America, this Live Store is noted for its extensive assortment of "out sizes"—garments for short men, tall men, short stout men, tall stout men, stoop shouldered men, short armed men, long armed men, with half sizes for the in-between-size men.

It's a source of great satisfaction to be able to fit and please thousands of men who cannot be properly fitted in ordinary clothing stores. It's also a source of great economy to be able to fit 99 out of every hundred men with no alterations worth mentioning.

So we save $30,000 a year on alterations alone. Add what we save through low Summer Street rent, through tremendous spot-cash buying and through having no charge accounts, and there you have the secret of the $3 to $10 you save on every suit you buy here.

Our recent record-breaking Half Million Dollar order for

Kuppenheimer Clothes

Was partially influenced by the ability of The House of Kuppenheimer to furnish these "out sizes" which the volume of our business demands, but which the ordinary store cannot afford to carry. The fitting qualities of Kuppenheimer Clothes are on a par with their superb woollens, superior styles and superfine tailoring. Unapproachable values at the special Kennedy prices of $18 $20 $22^{.50} $25 to $35

OTHER SUITS

If you can't afford to pay more than $15 for a suit of clothes, you certainly can't afford to buy anywhere but here. Dependable stock to pick from at $12.50 and $15

Kennedy Kravats 45c

Greatest neckwear value in New England, and the tremendous quantity we dispose of each week proves it. These heavy silk ties are four feet long, hand made in large open-end shapes, with slide-case neck bands. New designs go on sale automatically every day.

Complete Line of Manhattan Shirts, $1.50 to $10

BOYS' SUITS

In the "Kennedy Special" we give better fabric, better tailoring and better service than you'll find under $800.

$6.50 With

Others at $5 to $11.50

If we had boosted our shoe prices 50¢ a pair, as others have done, we'd still be giving you more for your money than you could get elsewhere. But we're selling you just the same grade of shoes at just the same prices we did a year ago. That means extraordinary value giving, and every man who buys Kennedy Shoes will benefit thereby to the tune of $1 to $3 per pair.

Champs Out to Repeat Mays Will Work Today

By HERMAN NICKERSON.
With their return to the home grounds the World's Champions appear to be in for a run of luck, in point of weather and in the form of the pitchers, whose weakness made their first success. The men have settled down to the home game, and make the most of it, so that they may have a new western trip.

There is one thing that will have to be done, and that is to get the champions back in the form of the pitchers, whose weakness made their first success. The men have settled down to the home game, and make the most of it, so that they may have a new western trip.

BRAVES' GAME OFF

Wet Grounds Postpones Proposed
Duel Between Dick Rudolph and Jeff Tesreau.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Even though the Braves did not win their game from Christ Mathewson in an extra stanza game, Chief Stallings was anything but pleased over the happenings. Any time the Braves gather four runs in the opening stanza the boss wants them to retain the advantage. Yesterday they did for a time, but ultimately they crossed both themselves and the boss up.

As today's game was called off, account of wet grounds, he more than likely to shoot Dick Rudolph at the Queens tomorrow, and tomorrow he will be looking for a fight with Jeff Tesreau.

SIDELIGHTS By HERMAN NICKERSON

THE World's champions began their home stay in the proper manner. Tuesday's morning meeting was most enough to stop any team in either league for that matter. WHEN Nunnaker got his clean singles in the third, the man up in the box was the first man to hit the ball. The ball was a high fly, and the catcher was a high fly. BOTH he and Lewis played the ball well. GARDNER and NUNAKER made a fine play. NUNAKER made a fine play. BARRY didn't have to move for the line drive. ...the mother wanted to herself. Grace would not regard matters as other color of the dot. Pussy willow taffeta in bold designs are also used for such skirts and when made in a pleated model are exceedingly good looking.

Effectiveness, in fact, is the keynote of the smart fashions in Summer sports clothes. Whether one inclines to sporty, graceful or is one of an unlovely, it is essential that her wardrobe should contain a goodly supply of these garments, for at the fashionable resorts such a costume is worn the greater part of the day.

Of sports hats there is legion. Some of the most attractive combinations of straw and material in combinations innumerable, and on many of them hand-painting is introduced. It may be only a plain ribbon band about the crown on which are painted prim little flowers, but it gives the requisite touch of individuality.

A most striking and unusual hint is a large dark eucalyptus straw with the top of the crown, underbrim faceline and band around the crown of black satin. The front of the band is a hand-painted flower basket, and the crown are painted the flowers which the basket holds. The painted basket is in shades of brown and the flowers of a garden variety, in vivid colorings.

Have you seen the new detachable brims for bathing caps? They are made to shade the eyes on the beach and are most becoming. The brim fits over the bathing cap and is taken off before plunging in the sea.

Plaid or striped silk in a dark color combination is a most attractive material for bathing suit. Plain taffeta is used as trimmings and a detachable pique collar gives a most becoming touch. Each suit should have three or four of the culture which may be attached to the suit. In this way, a fresh checked collar can be put on and worn out any trouble.

Though taffeta is satisfactory for bathing suits, salt-water satin is perhaps, the most serviceable of materials, and is equally good looking in either navy blue or black.

A number of the girls are also making the checked or plaid blouse, but while these garments look tempting in the hand, it is doubtful whether they will prove practical for such material is apt to cling to the figure after it has become wet.

The Obligation and Opportunity of the United States in the Philippines

Washington, May 5, 1916.

The Washington Post has published the following article:
To the Editor of the Washington Post:

The twenty-eight Democrats who bravely strove to save the nation from the disgrace of abandoning its duties, and from the mistake of sacrificing its opportunities in the Philippines, are as much national heroes as the men who fought to save the country from the evils of conquest in the Revolution, or of dismemberment in the Rebellion.

The sacrifice of high purpose and high principle would hardly have been greater had we failed in the Revolution; the sacrifice of territory and essential integrity would hardly have been severer, had we lost in the Rebellion, than the sacrifice the nation would suffer today in prestige and possessions through a timid and stupid abandonment of its obligations and opportunities in the Philippines.

These twenty-eight men who refused to be bound by a party caucus to do a traitorous act of national danger and dishonor were patriots before they were partisans, and deserve the grateful recognition and remembrance of patriotic citizens of whatever party.

They have rendered a great service to their country—a service for which they should receive their reward, not only in the approval of their own conscience, but in the universal consideration and esteem of a grateful people.

Surely these broad-minded, far-seeing statesmen will be remembered and respected when the little, spineless, spiritless followers of a timorous and traitorous administration are forever forgotten.

These courageous Democrats, who saved both their country and their party from injury and ignominy, will be denounced as disloyal by party bigots, but there is no disloyalty in refusing to follow disloyal leaders.

Benedict Arnold was an American general, but those would be pronounced traitors today who would have followed him into the camp of the enemy, while those who refused to follow him are esteemed patriots.

Loyalty to the present and future interests of our beloved country is more important in the minds of sincere citizens than loyalty to any individual or to any party policy.

The abandonment of the Philippines would mean more than mere loss of wealth and territory and power and prestige to the United States.

It would mean the betrayal of this island empire to Japan, and would make Japan that much more populous and powerful, and bring her frowning forts and formidable fleets that much nearer to our defenceless shores.

What nonsense to say that we would protect the Philippines as our wards when the island fortifications would be left to the lazy neglect and childish incompetence of the Filipinos, our fleets withdrawn from their harbors, our soldiers recalled from their shores!

Is it not easier to defend the Philippines as our possessions, fully fortified with our ships and guns, than it would be to defend them as wards without our armament and without authority?

Yet the same unwise and insincere demagogues who say we would protect the Philippines as our wards advocate the abandonment of the Philippines because we would be unable to protect them as our possessions.

The abandonment of the Philippines would be the colossal crime of our history, the crowning folly of our career as a nation.

It would be an indictment of democracy and impeachment of our republican form of government, a reflection upon the capacity and patriotism of our people, a slur and slight upon the intelligence and efficiency of our citizenship.

It would be a first and fatal step toward the relinquishment of American supremacy in the Pacific. It would mean a final disaster to American trade in the Orient and a dull and despicable repudiation of America's duties and destinies.

The abandonment of the Philippines would be moral, political and economic high treason.

The party which would commit such an act of moral obloquy, political treachery and economic stupidity should be tried and convicted and forever expelled from the councils of the nation by the American people.

The United States stands at the crisis of its career. It has become the greatest of modern nations.

It has grown not merely through natural national development, but through legitimate expansion and immigration.

It has increased through the extension of its territory and the absorption of other peoples into its population.

At first our nation was but a line of liberated colonies strung along the Atlantic Coast. Then, after due and dogged opposition from the Tories of the time, the Floridas were added.

Then, to our glory, Thomas Jefferson's immortal memory, the immense Louisiana territory was acquired. Then, in spite of the trepidation of the timid, our title to the far Northwest was substantiated.

Then Texas was admitted, and California, Arizona and New Mexico were absorbed. All of which the reactionaries resented and the petty Americans opposed.

One statesman went so far as to say that California would never be a fit habitation for anything but horned toads—California, which now could supply gold and grain and flowers and fruit and oil and soil and homes and harvests for the world!

Then Alaska was bought and pronounced worthless by the stupid and short-sighted until its hills were found to be sheathed with copper and its river beds paved with gold.

All the time those who lacked imagination to see the possibilities in new lands and larger developments dignified their dulness by the name of conservatism and stood stolid in the path of progress.

Still our country grew. It was our destiny.

Still the glowing star of our extending empire took its western way.

We fought the Spanish War and won the Philippines.

Of course, history repeats itself. Of course, the reactionaries rise today to repudiate our opportunities and obligations there as they did in Florida, in Louisiana, in California, in Alaska.

Of course, the miniature Americans want the nation to shrink to their small size, and the short-sighted politicians and pedagogues want the confines of our country's greatness to contract to the radius of their limited vision.

But the true Americans, the big Americans, the Americans with soul and sense, with intelligence and imagination, the Americans who have made the country the great country that it is, want the nation to grow ever greater and fulfil to the full its duties and its destinies.

Greatness is a matter of soul, not of census. To be truly great, our people must possess national pride and patriotic purpose—not merely population.

We must have the spirit of our fathers, the energy and ambition of our ancestors.

We must devote ourselves to our national development, our territorial enlargement, our moral and material improvement.

We must consecrate ourselves to the extension of our civilizing influence, of our beneficial and benign activities, of our uplifting and inspiring ideals.

The United States is located at the conflux of the world's activities.

On the one side is the Atlantic Ocean, the great commercial highway connecting us with Europe. On the other side is the Pacific Ocean, the great thoroughfare of trade uniting us with Asia. On the south lie the rich and rising republics of South America.

Such a commanding and controlling location should make our country, as it made Venice in former times and under former conditions, the centre of the world's commerce, the custodian of the world's wealth.

But something other than mere location, as well as something more than mere population, is needed for true greatness and glory.

We must have enterprise and imagination, courage and confidence, the ability to understand and the energy to exploit the advantages which surround us.

God's work of civilizing the world must be done and will not lag for lack of willing servants.

If we fail to do our full duty, other nations will be found to supplement or supplant us.

We must not be dependent upon the past, content with the achievements of our ancestors. We must work out our own salvation, perform our present-day obligation.

A professor of ancient history is not the best leader for a modern constituency. He is likely to be so intent upon the incidents of the past that he is oblivious of the occurrences of the present and indifferent to the opportunities of the future.

A nation is like an individual. It lives and labors, it plans and performs, it conceives and achieves.

It passes through its successive ages of majority, of maturity, of seniority, of senility.

It grows and develops. It declines and dies.

In all its course no nation stands still. It either advances or recedes, progresses or retrogresses.

We have not yet reached the point where we must disintegrate and deteriorate.

The red blood of enthusiasm is still warm in our veins, our minds are still alert to our labors, our hearts are still strong in our faith.

We have set our hand to the plow; let us not turn back until we have reached the end of the furrow. We have enlisted for the fight; let us not desert or desist until the victory is won.

We have accepted the responsibility of the Philippines, the duty of their development.

Let us neither repent nor retract. Let us perform our complete patriotic obligation and make the Philippines a progressive and potential part of our country and of our civilization, the foremost buttress of our safety, the furthestmost bastion of our enlightenment and liberty.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.
